Subject: Cboe ETH Filing

OCC is aware of the recent approval of Cboe's rule filing (SR-CBOE-2025-079) to expand trading hours for multi-listed options. OCC is further aware that the SEC's approval order notes that Cboe has committed not to implement the proposed extended session trading until after any SEC approval of the proposed rule change that OCC must file.

Since 2015, OCC has supported the clearance and settlement of index options and index futures in extended trading hours pursuant to procedures approved by the SEC (SR-OCC-2014-24; SR-OCC-2014-812). In anticipation of industry developments in this area, OCC has proactively engaged with SEC Staff to develop the framework necessary to support expanded trading hours for an expanded set of products.

It is important to note OCC has not yet formally submitted a proposed rule change with the SEC, nor has OCC received regulatory approval to support expanded trading hours for multi-listed options. OCC will provide further updates as this process advances.
